Description One of the steps in extraction is to extract the index (as text). For unrar.exe, if a file us encrypted, then there is an * next to the name. This asterisk can be used to determine whether each file is encrypted, instead of calling unrar to read the signature of each file. However, even if the signature is not required for encryption, it can be used to determine the type of the file and compare it to the extension. This would be a nice option.
